I am appalled that the city manager is having private meetings with book banners. This is disrespectful to the larger library board and to the expert staff of the libraries. Please delay the decision on the proposed collection development policy for the libraries. Not everyone has had a chance to give input. Please consider a town hall so that everyone can have input rather than only listening to CCDF as the city manager has done. Libraries are for everyone and should not be controlled by a small group of people who have a political agenda and who don't even use them.

Drought Contingency Plan

Comment

I urge you all to ensure that our drought contingency plan is not only effective but also equitable. Water is a basic necessity, and during times of drought, we must make sure that conservation efforts and restrictions do not disproportionately impact low-income communities and those who already experience water insecurity. Big industry, that uses more than their fair share of our water, needs to be held accountable and must pay their fair share. It is not equitable to put the burden of this drought on everyday Corpus residents. We are not the reason we got to this point, big oil, gas, and industry is. Without an intentional focus on equity, drought policies can deepen existing disparities. I urge this body to consider these factors as you refine the plan so that all residents—regardless of income or neighborhood—have fair access to water and a voice in how we manage it. Thank you for your time.

Hello, my name is Laura Cruz, and I am a resident of Corpus Christi.

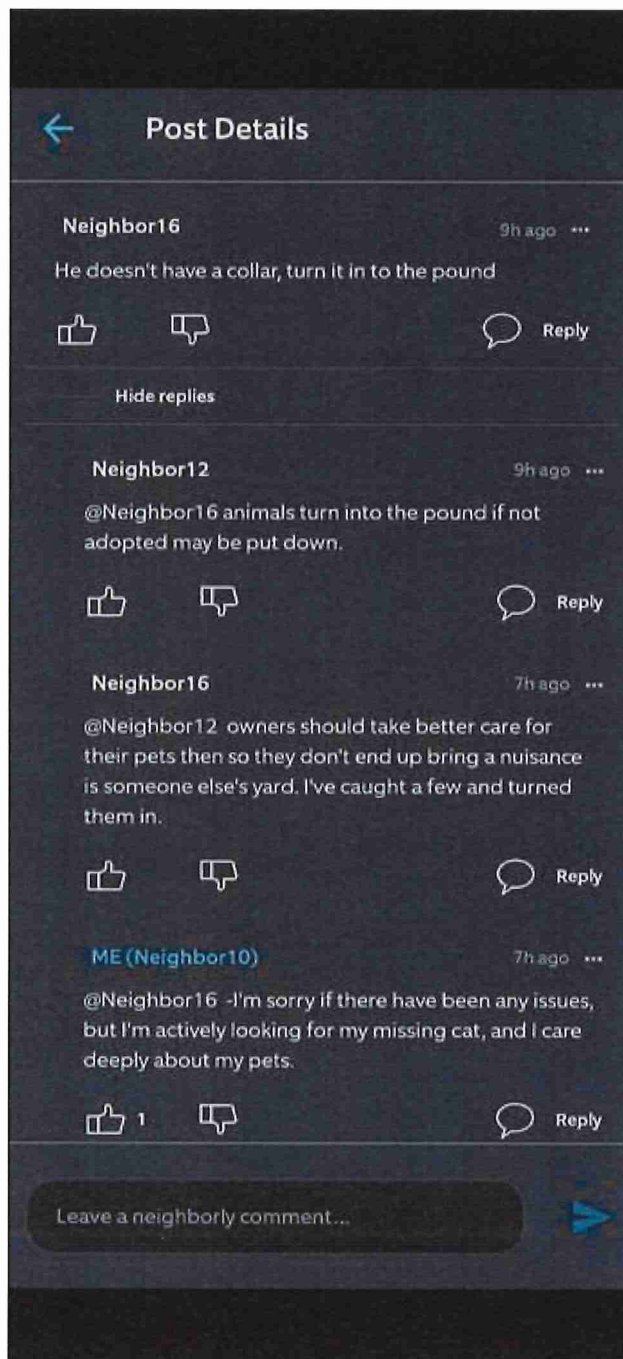

I urge the City Council to adopt a policy requiring individuals involved in animal trapping to be trained and certified. Untrained trappers can cause unnecessary harm, stress, or death to animals by trapping them incorrectly. There is no reason for this to continue.

Cities like New York, Massachusetts, and Washington have mandatory trapper education programs that ensure humane practices. Corpus Christi has the chance to lead in responsible animal welfare by requiring certification for trappers. This would protect animals and set a standard of accountability in our community.

Delaying this policy would be a disservice to animals and diminish our city's commitment to humane treatment. Our dedication to ethical practices should be clear and unwavering.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Water, Drought Contingency Plan, Equity for residents and the working class

Agenda Item Number

Comment

This proposed drought contingency plan does not enact measures that adequately address the situation we are with are lake levels and stage 3 drought. Swift loan water figures are attached. This is absolutely egregious, and now because of poor management and decisions from the council over the years, now residents are impacted with restrictions on water use at their personal residences or at their neighborhood park when the water fountain has been off for the last 5 months. The wording in section 10.5 of the updated DCP, is still not adequate in my opinion, as we need specific, in writing levels of curtailment at this point. Industry needs to be held to higher standards, as their amount of water use is grotesque and makes not a lot of sense for the working class here in corpus. There are pros and cons to anything, and industry has cons of human health problems through pollution of the air, water, and soil, they cause a strain on our public resources

9:09 AM Case numbers are annual, so for example, take Valero (who is supplying fuel to support Israel's genocide in Gaza, straight out of Corpus Christi)

Receipts

Valero uses

3,209,904,000 gallons a year

3,209,904,000 divided by 365

Valero uses -8.7 million gallons per day

The average household uses -72,000 gallons a year (or less!!!)

72,000 divided by 365

The average residential household uses -197 gallons per day

Valero's annual water usage equals 44,582 households (about 34% of Corpus Christi's total households).

All top 10 industrial users combined equal 229,644 households (about 1.77 times the total households in Corpus Christi).

Conclusion:
Industrial water usage vastly exceeds residential consumption.
The top 10 industrial customers alone use enough water to supply nearly twice the number of households in Corpus Christi

These numbers are annual so for example take Valero (who is supplying fuel to support Israel's genocide in Gaza, straight out of Corpus Christi)

Valero uses
 3,209,904,000 gallons a year
 3,209,904,000 divided by 365
 Valero uses -8.7 million gallons per day

The average household uses -72,000 gallons a year (or less!!!)
 72,000 divided by 365
 The average residential household uses -197 gallons per day

Valero's annual water usage equals 44,582 households (about 34% of Corpus Christi's total households).

All top 10 industrial users combined equal 229,644 households (about 1.77 times the total households in Corpus Christi).

Conclusion:
 Industrial water usage vastly exceeds residential consumption. The top 10 industrial customers alone use enough water to supply nearly twice the number of households in Corpus Christi!
