Project Manager & Scrum Master - Data Center Exits (Cloud Migration)

Worked as a Project Manager for Data Center Exit (DCE) project. The project involved migration of all Capital One on- premise data centers (DCs) to Cloud. Amazon AWS was used for all Cloud related services. The work started with identifying all the applications that are to be migrated to cloud. Once identified, the next step was to do the actual migration to Cloud. This was followed by a "go dark" period, which involved switching off the network from the on-premise servers and moving all the business processing to cloud. The changeover from on-premise to cloud was done with minimal impact to business. The last and the final step of migration was to decommission all the voice and data circuits from the data centers. The work also involved setting-up a point to point (P2P) connection between Capital One and multiple AWS sites.

As a Scrum Master, I was involved in day-to-day activities like conducting stand-up meetings, organizing sprint planning, sprint review, backlog refinement, retrospectives etc. The project was done using SAFe framework. JIRA/Confluence was used for scrum activities.

Working as a Scrum Master for Toyota Connected (TC). The work involved creating a Toyota Big Data Center Solution (TBDC) platform for Toyota using Microsoft Azure Data Lake Storage (ADLS) as the cloud solution and Business Intelligence (BI) module for analytics and reporting. The objective of TBDC was to provide a quick and reliable store vehicle data and transform engineering data to meaningful, consumable telemetry. The need was to capture real time telematics data for making informed decisions and plan for future products. This involved building a flexible and scalable global data infrastructure to meet the current and future business requirements. The platform was built in a way to accept data in any form, type or manner & handle broken, poor or incomplete data. Additionally, the TBDC platform was able to integrate with other third-party applications. The first step towards this was to load data from external data into Windows Azure Storage Blob(WASB) of Microsoft Azure (AWS). The data was then moved to BI platform for various analytical and reporting purposes. The project was done using agile framework. I was working as a Scrum Master for Toyota Connected. This involved working with Product Owners in prioritizing the user stories, having daily stand-up call with the team, conducting sprint planning and review meetings with the scrum team, arranging for demos with the business users etc. Also, was involved in coaching and training the team on the agile framework. AT&T acquired Direct TV (DTV) and the work involved creating a centralized HR data hub for both AT&T and DTV systems. The project will create an HR Data Hub (one central database) of workforce information for all AT&T employees (including DTV), non-payroll workers (NPW), and retirees that allows direct, immediate access to facilitate the development and maintenance of regular and ad hoc workforce analysis, dashboards, reports, employee lists etc., to meet the changing needs of business. The HR data hub/database will include information from core HRMS systems such as elink and iHRMs, data from other HR systems such as Amplify and Taleo etc., and have the capability for the client to maintain data, security and access, create and maintain tables as well as load data from other sources such as spreadsheets, retail sales performance etc. The DTV HR system was on Workday. The main users of HR data base would be the HR Workforce Analytics (WFA) team. The HR data hub will be built in accordance to the HR Open Standard Noun. The ultimate aim of the data hub is to serve as an efficient platform which enables smooth functioning of a analytic framework on top of it. This analytics framework on a well-structured and consistent data model like Data Hub will allow AT&T to take smart HR decision based on key metric outcomes of analytics. The project is divided into 6 deployments. We are currently into first deployment which is building the data hub and creating the "Employee Master data" database. The HR data hub is created at a global level and will contain data from 18 countries. BOOMI was used as an ETL tool. The project was done using Agile method.

Project Manager - Online Order Capture Engine & Search

Infrastructure Project Manager for the Digital Platform Engineering (DETS) team in ATT. As part of DETS team, was responsible for 2 projects - Search and Order Capture Engine (OCE). Search allows customers to do global search on ATT websites for different products. Currently, ATT uses different tools to do their global search. There was a need to standardize the tool so that it will give consistency to the Business users while analyzing the tool results. The first step was to identify all the vendors which can cater to the tool requirements as defined by the business. The next step was to do the evaluations of these tools based on a specific criterion. The objective was to identify the best tool which can support the global search engine. This involved implementing the search tool for new websites and also integrating the existing systems to the new product. Once the vendor has been identified, my responsibility involved creating a Statement of Works detailing the scope of work to be performed by vendors.

As part of OCE infrastructure project, we were involved in migration of on-premise infrastructure to a new cloud solution for all voice communications services. This involved setting up of different environments, adding Production and disaster recovery (DR) servers, managing storage space, configuration of servers, opening up the firewall with offshore, comprehensive testing of servers, doing disaster recovery exercise, testing load balancer and integration of cloud servers with other applications etc.
