ISAC

Why are you interested in serving on a City board, commission or committee?

From the moment I relocated to Texas and became an "Islander" almost four years ago, I immediately recognized Padre Island as anything but just another neighborhood. Instead, I quickly discovered the Island to be a very special place that's home to quality residential development, a commercial center, and the area's leading visitor attraction - all the elements that provide for a strong community that was developed, in part, by volunteers and partnering agencies with a strategic mindset on how best to shape our island. Now, I would like to continue that purpose, helping to further aid in the future growth and development of our island. I can think of no better opportunity to advance the growth of the Island than by serving on the Island Strategic Action Committee.

Alan Guggenheim

International executive, entrepreneur, and consultant Alan Andre Albert Paul Edouard Guggenheim, the son of Jacques and Micheline (Raffalovich) Guggenheim, was born in Paris, France, on May 12, 1950. He arrived in the U.S. in 1982 and became a naturalized American citizen in 1991.

Alan Guggenheim has had a 40+year career building, developing and leading successful businesses in Europe, the Caribbean and the United States while volunteering for many organizations. He brings to his professional experience a life filled with early exposure to small and large business operations in France and the Lesser Antilles of the Caribbean as well as the U.S. With the analytical and strategic mind of a mathematician, the tactical side of a civil engineer, and the geo-political savvy of a global entrepreneur, he has successfully implemented projects, integrated operations into community and global networks, and consistently returned strong shareholder value.

As an officer in the French Army Reserves, he received a Medal of Honor and retired as a Major, and he worked with the French government in supporting the trans-Atlantic Alliance during Operation Desert Storm. A steadfast volunteer and supporter of a range of non-profit organizations, Alan has also served on boards of the Navy League, Rotary Club, and other organizations. He has also been active in Republican politics and ran for an Assembly seat in California.

Alan received his education in civil engineering as well as business and mathematics in French universities, where he also helped manage the National Association of Professors, Businessmen and Students, edited its newsletter, and served as an Assistant Professor of Mathematics.

He formally began his career as a professional civil engineer, managing Dam-construction, hospital-building and other major construction projects in French West Indies. He also served on the French Defense Commission and was a Major in the French Army Reserves. Before emigrating to the U.S., Alan was Executive Director and CEO of the Business Council of Guadeloupe, reorganizing the Council and building up the island's services to businesses.

The knowledge and contacts he had developed in France and the Antilles he would later take with him to America, where he has led corporations in multiple cutting-edge technology fields, in Telecommunications, Communication Security, Media, Health, and other sectors. serving as Chairman and CEO of CIS Inc. (CALCAR Investment Services Inc.), an International Strategic and Business Development Consulting Company; a Senior Vice President for NagraVision, the digital television arm of the Kudelski Group; CEO for NagraStar, a supplier of conditional access systems and security access devices and services to EchoStar's Dish Network; Executive Vice President and member of the Executive Board of the Kudelski Group and Chairman of the Board of Nagra USA; President and CEO of OpenTV, a leading provider of convergent media solutions; and Chairman and CEO of Sensible Care Holdings, an Emergency Medical Services management company.

At ease negotiating at high levels of government, corporate organizations, and unions, Alan has played key roles in establishing strategic alliances, raising venture capital, rolling out innovative security products, leading marketing initiatives, and engaging all levels of workers, leaders, and stakeholders to design and implement new business strategies.

Alan earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Mathematics from Paris University in 1971, and from September 1972 to June 1975 he taught as an Assistant Professor of Mathematics at the National School of Arts and Architecture (ENSBA), Architect School, in Paris. While teaching at the ENSBA he also directed publishing and finance for the Union Nationale Universitaire (UNI), a National Association of Professors, Businessmen and Students, and was Executive Editor of the newsletter L'Action Universitaire (1970-1976) and an elected member of the Board of CROUS, the housing and catering firm for Paris Universities (1972–1975).

In 1975, Alan earned his Master of Science degree in Civil Engineering, with a Minor in Business, from the Ecole Supérieure des Travaux Publics (ESTP) in Paris, receiving the Gold Medal OTH (Omnium Technique Holding) for his Dissertation, “Method for Computer-Aided Electrical Cost Estimation in Major Construction Projects.”

Alan was also a French Army Reservist and ROTC instructor who graduated with honors in 1981 from the French Command and General Staff Reserve College (ESORSEM) in Paris. He would retire in 1991 from the French Reserves as a Major, and he received a Medal of Honor from the French Department of Defense. In addition, from 1969 to 1977, Alan served as a member of the French Defense Commission, appointed by the French Secretary of Defense. He worked with the General Secretary for National Defense (SGDN) on the trans-Atlantic Alliance, supporting Strategic confidential missions, in particular during the Operation Desert Storm, with the NSC, Defense Department, Armed Services Committees, Rand Corporation, Naval Post Graduate School, and Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

Soon after receiving his engineering degree, Alan joined Société Routière Colas (Colas Construction Company) as a Civil Engineer, from September 1976 to December 1978, first in Paris and then in Martinique and Pointe à Pitre in the French Antilles.

After training for 5 months in the Internal Audit Department, he was promoted to Deputy Construction Manager for the project of the La Manzo Dam in Martinique, French Antilles. Subsequently, he was promoted to Public Works Engineer in Guadeloupe, responsible for several major construction projects, including the construction of the Pointe-à-Pitre General Hospital, a $100 million, 50-acre, 750-beds project. From 1976 to 1978, he also served by appointment of Prime Minister Jacques Chirac to the French Ministry of Housing, Urban Development, and Transportation Commission.

After serving as an engineer for the Société Routière Colas, he was appointed Executive Director of the Conseil Régional du Patronat de la Guadeloupe, the Regional Interprofessional Business Council of Guadeloupe, serving in Pointe à Pitre, Guadeloupe, from January 1979 to December 1981.

As Executive Director and CEO of the Council, Alan was responsible for the growth and re-organization of this non-profit organization. He designed with the cooperation of the business leaders, ways to ensure responsible business conduct and promote the economic and social interests of Guadeloupe. For the organization itself, he increased its budget from $20,000 to $2 million and the staff from 3 to 29, while turning around the cash position to reserves of $200,000.

Alan promoted and negotiated the extension of the Unemployment Insurance to the overseas Departments, including successful negotiations within the highest levels of government, corporation organizations and unions, and created a local Unemployment Compensation Office.

In addition, he created a construction and improvement lending financial institution (CIL), which attracted several million dollars of contributions from 220 companies in its first year. He also reorganized a failing occupational safety medicine institution (APASICA) into a viable company-funded facility, balancing the budget after one year, increasing revenues from $100,000 to $1 million, small business membership from 1000 to 2500, and employees covered from 10,000 to 25,000.

Also in this position as Executive Director of the Council, he planned and implemented a successful internal data processing division, on an IBM System 34, which created revenues and provided computer training and consulting services to more than 330 small businesses. He also developed and turned profitable two continuous-education entities, AFET in retail and imports and AFISA in agriculture.

In addition to directing the Business Council, Alan was honored to be representing Guadeloupe as Employment Development Delegate, 1979-1981. From 1980 to 1981, he was also a member on the Boards of Directors of several French organizations including ASSEDIC (management of unemployment funds in Guadeloupe), CRSS, Guadeloupe (management of medical and social security funds), and CGRR, Guadeloupe (retirement pension fund management).

From 1979 to 1981, Alan was also editor and publisher of 971 le Mensuel des Entreprises (971, The Corporate Monthly).

After coming to the U.S. in 1982 and moving to California, he first started a consulting and computer programming services company as Chairman and CEO in Stockton, CA – D.B.C.S. Inc./San Joaquin Software Systems. Backed by a group of French investors, he bought a ComputerLand franchise in Stockton, CA, quickly increasing profits to more than $200,000 on sales of $2.5 million. He ultimately grew the company to five centers through openings, mergers and acquisitions, with sales in excess of $10 million. He was also elected a member of the ComputerLand Corporate Software Committee representing the Western Region.

He later formed CIS Inc. (CALCAR Investment Services Inc., Newbury Park, CA), an International Strategic and Business Development Consulting and IT Services Company for which he has been Chairman and CEO since 1983. Through CIS, he consulted for high-level government entities on strategic transatlantic issues and designed and implemented global business development strategies to increase sales opportunities, margins, and customer delivery for companies and entities such as the Dassault Group in the fields of communication, banking and multimedia from 1993 to 1998, as well as SMT-Goupil, Normerel, Aton, and SGDN.

In this period, Alan was also a Board member of SUCMANU (manufacturer, powdered coal and slaughterhouse systems) in Paris between 1982 and 1986 and a founding member of the Board of Pacific State Bank in Stockton, CA, from 1985 until 1987.

Through CIS Inc., Alan also worked with Nagravision, the digital television arm of the Kudelski Group (for which he would later become Executive Vice President and Member of the Executive Board). The Kudelski Group, headquartered in Lausanne, Vaud Switzerland, is a public company traded on the Swiss exchange (SWX:KUD.VX) and has been a technology pioneer for more than half a century. Today, its security technologies are used in a wide range of applications requiring access control and rights management, both for securing the exchange of information (digital television, broadband Internet, video on demand, etc.) and for controlling and managing physical access to sites and events.

From January 1996 to December 1997, Alan served as Vice President for Programs and Operations for Nagravision, opening what were the first offices for the Kudelski Group in the U.S. and developing a team of support and service engineers as well as the Program Management Organization.

Visiting customers and partners to rebuild trust, he engaged personally in key customer relationships and negotiations with customers World Wide, such as BSkyB (United Kingdom), UGC/UPC/Liberty Global (Netherlands), Sky Italia (Italy), Foxtel (Australia), Sky New Zealand, and Multi-Choice Africa (South Africa) as well as DISH Network, Comcast, and Time Warner. He also launched company-wide communication tools spanning 10 locations and 7 countries in all continents to deliver the new vision and message to partners, investors and customers at trade shows and public conferences.

In September 2007, after departing from OpenTV, Alan moved to Texas and re activated his International Business development company, CIS, Inc. (Spring, TX, now Corpus Christi, TX). As Chairman of the Board and CEO, he led the company, consulting in technology fields applied to Telecommunications, Communication Security, Media, Health, and Energy sectors, consulting, advising and providing expert reports on digital signal security, Conditional Access and Smart Cards applications. If you applied for multiple boards, which boards are you most interested in serving on, in order of preference? (Limit to top three)

Why are you interested in serving on a City board, commission or committee?

I first came to Corpus Christi as a medical student. I had always wanted to visit Texas (I am originally from New Jersey) and my medical school had an opportunity to rotate at Bay Area Medical Center (which included room and board) so of course I jumped at the chance. I immediately fell in love with Corpus, I took advantage of my month here and learned to windsurf. I visited the Botanical Gardens, the Lexington, the Texas State Aquarium, North Beach, and the Padre National Seashore, and when I was done, I left Corpus with the promise that as soon as I finished my residency.....I would move to Corpus Christi TX and I would buy myself a house on "the island." 6 years after I made that promise, I finished my residency and I applied to the one job that I saw listed in Corpus Christi. I came for my interview and knew that living here in Corpus was what I truly wanted. (I knew absolutely no one in Corpus Christi, and I left my entire family to come here). IT WAS THE BEST DECISION I HAVE EVER MADE IN MY LIFE. I owe all the professional and personal success that I have to the opportunities that this area has offered me. After finishing Leadership Corpus Christi, I decided that I wanted to become more involved in our city, and to have a small impact in how wonderful this area is. I may lack in experience when it comes to serving on a committee, commission or board, but I do have a significant passion for Corpus Christi, and I have a long history of strong work and dedication which should prove to you that I can learn how best to serve the community.
