Packery Channel Monitoring Program
Proposed Effort Year 1 of 5

Summary and Cost Estimate

September 2, 2016

Submitted to:
The City of Corpus Christi

Submitted by:

Packery Channel Monitoring Program

Purpose

To continue to support the City of Corpus Christi's vested interest in the inlet, beach (Mustang and North Padre Island), and sensitive habitat that comprise the Packery Channel System. This program supports the City of Corpus Christi's pro-active approach to research-based management of this system.

The monitoring program consists of three (3) monitoring events to document the seasonal changes in shoaling and scour in the channel as well as erosion/accretion and shoreline recession/advance along the adjacent beaches. This information is then applied to guide the City in planning toward management of cyclic dredging and beach nourishment. Each year the following surveys will be conducted:

1. Winter Seasonal Survey (Feb/Mar)
Documents seasonal period of reduction in shoaling and channel recovery
Corresponds to completion of Maintenance Dredge
2. Annual (Summer) Survey and Assessment of Performance (Sept/Oct)
Documents spring/summer shoal building in Entrance Channel
Corresponds to completion of channel construction
3. Spring Transition Survey (Jul)
Documents peak period of channel shoaling

The seasonal surveys provide information toward guidance as related to the following management concerns:

- Pre and post-dredge/nourishment monitoring (Post-surveys in progress)
- Future dredge planning and support (In progress)
- Navigation safety and placement of aids to navigation (As needed)
- Beach nourishment planning and support (In progress)
- Maintain beach monitoring program in order to qualify for CEPRA funding (Ongoing)
- Sensitive habitat management at the Mollie Beattie Coastal Habitat Community (MBCHC) (Annual)

- Maintain beach monitoring program in order to qualify for FEMA reimbursement documentation of status and active monitoring program (Annual)
- Data acquisition made available for application to structural stability assessment of coastal structures: jetties, revetment, bridge reinforcement (Ongoing)
- Public awareness and community education/outreach (Ongoing)
- Support and collaboration on vicinity coastal projects and concerns (As needed)

Focus of Monitoring Year 2016/2017

- Assessment of rate of shoaling and guidance of dredge planning or deferment based on seasonal surveys (Dredge anticipated in 2018-2019)
- Assessment of accretion adjacent to inlet as related to sediment transport into the channel mouth
- Identification of navigation hazards and unanticipated shoaling and scour in newly identified areas
- Assessment of erosion of beach fronting the NPI Seawall and coordination with dredging schedule for re-nourishment

Background

- Monitoring began in August 2003, prior to construction (originally funded by Galveston District, USACE and the Coastal Hydraulics Laboratory, Coastal Inlets Research Program).
- Inlet opened during Hurricane Emily (July 2005), one year prior to completion of construction (October 2006).
- Sponsorship of monitoring transferred to the City of Corpus Christi (2008 to present).
- Limited dredge in Deposition Basin at ramp to facilitate boat entry (Jan 2010).
- Notice to Mariners issued regarding elevation of Entrance Shoal (Sep 2010).
- Dredge (#1) of channel from Deposition Basin to Entrance Channel to within 550 ft of the channel mouth (completed March 2012). Total pay volume was 190,757 cu yd (HDR). Completion of dredge was deferred to Winter 2012/2013.
- Dredge (#2) of Inner Entrance Channel and Entrance Channel completed to within 550 ft of channel mouth (completed March 2013). Total volume was \approx 48,757 cu yd. Remaining 550 ft of Entrance Channel shoal was not removed.
- Notice to Mariners issued regarding elevation of Entrance Channel Shoal (Jul 2014).
- No peak in shoaling identified and limited potential for navigation interruption in primary channel from Nov 2014 to Jul 2016.

Ongoing Contribution of Program

- Program supports pro-active system management by the City of Corpus Christi and functions as established monitoring program as applied to submissions for FEMA and CEPRA support.
- Analysis has supported decision to defer dredging, originally predicted at an interval of every two-three years, to five years from channel completion.
- Analysis has identified need (shoaling) for placement of aids to navigation.

- Seasonal survey data identified need for initiation of Notice to Mariners during September 2010 and July 2014 due to shoaling and potential of limited navigation at the channel mouth.
- Data and analysis applied to request FEMA reimbursement after Hurricane Ike.
- Data and analysis document measured seasonal condition of shoaling (as opposed visual interpretation often reported by community).
- Data and analysis applied to assess maintenance post-Dredge#1 (Phase 1) 2011/2012 condition for recommendation of post-maintenance Dredge#1 (Phase 2) (2012/2013).
- Monitoring of nourishment fronting seawall for vehicular access concerns and bollard placement.
- Analysis and guidance to support alternative dredge/nourishment funding sources such as CEPRA grants initiating in 2015.
- Two proposals for grants for supplementary funding toward surveys were submitted during 2015 and 2016 (RESTORE)

Benefits of Seasonal Surveys to Inlet/Beach Management

- Monitor persistence of bypass bar and increased nearshore shoaling near channel mouth as related to potential ebb shoal formation.
- Quantify post-dredge channel shoaling and scour and identify changes in trends.
- Quantify change in post-nourishment beach width and volume along seawall in preparation for re-nourishment
- Seasonal monitoring of shoaling allows for adequate warning of navigation limitation and supports emergency dredge implementation or placement of navigation aids.
- Beach profile and shoreline surveys continue to track changes in beach width for planning beach nourishment and/or restriction of vehicular access.
- Inland channel surveys track changes in bank expansion that could impact protected habitat, residential property, and Nueces County Park boundaries.

Monitoring Program Tasks

The proposed effort will provide for the monitoring of Packery Channel commencing in 2016/2017 through 2021/2022 (5 Years). In an effort to reduce City staff effort and to reduce overhead costs the monitoring program will shift from annual amendment format to a 5-year contract mechanism. This will allow work to proceed without interruption. The Monitoring Task (Task 1) is divided into five (5) sub-tasks which include the now standard seasonal surveys as well as an event category that allows for unanticipated survey needs such as post-storm and other surveys/assessments that are related to the Packery Channel system and surrounding area as directed by City staff. The Tasks that are outlined below follow the successful monitoring program implemented from 2008 to 2016. Each survey is conducted at the end of each season to best represent the maximum change in sediment transport. This provides for documentation of peak periods of erosion/accretion (beach) and shoaling/scour (channel). The estimated budgetcosts for

Year 1 represent a streamlined cost that was adjusted based on the request of both the ISAC and City Council during 2015.

Task 1. Seasonal and Event Monitoring

- Winter Seasonal Survey (Feb/Mar)
Estimated Cost Year 1: $ $94,516
- Spring Survey (Jun/Jul)
Estimated Cost Year 1: $58,627
- Summer Survey (Sep/Oct)
Estimated Cost Year 1: $104,602
- Event (Post-Storm, engineering support)
Estimated Maximum Cost YEAR: $ 75,886
 - Post-Storm Survey Assessments
 - Engineering support surveys (dredge, canal development)
 - Additional surveys as directed by City of Corpus Christi

Estimated Cost Task 1 (Winter, Spring and Summer Seasonal Surveys):
$257,745

Estimated Total Project Cost (Task 1 + Event Activities):
$ 333,631
